

DIGITAL MEDIA STUDIES (DMS)

DMS 393 Internship in Digital Media Studies (1-3 credits)

The course provides college credit for those students engaged in internships in digital media and related work outside Pace University. Under supervision of a faculty member, the student will enter into the internship and learn to relate the professional work they are doing back to their educational experience in the Digital Media Studies minor. At the completion of the internship, students will write a paper describing their experience and explaining the relation between their professional and academic experiences. Students will also be required to submit an evaluation form from their internship supervisor.

Course Rotation: NYC; Fall and Spring
