

TRANSFER

A transfer student is defined as anyone who has earned college-level coursework after graduation from a secondary school or high school. Transfer applicants must submit college transcripts from all schools attended with their application. Applicants who have completed less than twenty-four college credits after graduating high school must also submit their final high school transcript with their application.

Submission of false records or omission of previous college, university, and/or proprietary school attendance may result in denial of admission, reversal of admission decision, and/or denial of transfer credit.
