

ENGLISH, WRITING, AND RHETORIC/PUBLISHING, BA/MS

The combined BA in Writing and Rhetoric / MS in Publishing offers a path for students passionate about both the craft of writing and the business of bringing written works to the world. Through the undergraduate curriculum, students develop as creative, professional, and rhetorical writers, learning to communicate effectively across diverse audiences and media, while the graduate component provides specialized training in editing, digital media, marketing, and other industry-specific skills needed to navigate the modern publishing landscape. This integrated program combines creative insight with professional expertise and offers opportunities to build valuable connections in New York City's thriving publishing industry.

This is an accelerated 5-year program of 144 credits, with 12 graduate credits taken in the undergraduate junior and senior years.
