

LATIN AMERICAN STUDIES MAJOR, BA

Campus: NYC

Latin American Studies (LAS) is an interdisciplinary program of course offerings from eight liberal arts and social science departments. Its purpose is the development of versatile bilingual professionals and area specialists who are equipped to meet the challenges of globalization, including a complex economy for which specialization in a single, technical field is insufficient. To complete this 36-credit major, students select courses from various subject areas:

- Language Proficiency,
- History,
- Literature,
- Culture,
- Economy, and
- Society.

Note: Students wishing to double major may share a maximum of credits in a second Dyson BA major as follows:

- Modern Languages & Cultures (21);
- Language, Culture & World Trade (21);
- History (15);
- Economics (6).
